

Britain's universities contribute to huge environmental problems, but they don't have to... Let's make our university Go Green!

A handful of universities are leading the way

Several UK universities have already shown that high environmental performance is possible. These universities are reducing energy and water use, recycling more, sending less waste to landfill, purchasing green products, eliminating unnecessary consumption and reducing reliance on cars.

Let's make our university Go Green too!

Printed by the environmentally friendly waterless offset process on chlorine free paper using at least 75% post consumer waste by Seacourt Ltd who hold ISO14001 and EMAS environmental accreditations and are a carbon-neutral company.