FE STAFF TRAINING

People & Planet staff training will provide you with the tools to engage students in student-led, global citizenship activities with three follow-up workshops and campaign materials to stimulate learner voice and global citizenship at your college.

What will you learn?

How to:

- Effectively hit OFSTED targets on sustainability
- Engage students in global citizenship issues
- Increase learner voice within the college
- Get students to think critically
- Support students to become politically literate
- Support students to take positive action for change
- Effectively monitor and evaluate your students' progress through the academic year
- Create open spaces for students to become leaders

Who should attend?

Tutorial managers, Course Managers, Enrichment officers, Union Officers, Course Tutors

Which subject areas is this relevant to?

Fashion design, citizenship, textiles, travel and tourism, food studies, geography, politics, business studies, history, sociology, economics and more.

Why should you get involved?

The training is free, done on-site at your college or school and will be tailored to your staff's needs. The session will be between 1 and 2 hours long depending on your needs.

This course is part of long term support which includes three workshops for students about an issue and how to take positive action on it, campaign materials and ongoing support from a staff member in the support office.

About Us

People & Planet has inspired thousands of students to speak up and run campaigns to make a difference on issues like human rights and climate change within their own schools and colleges. We support the formation of student-led groups to raise awareness and lobby for change.

Over sixty schools and colleges now have Fairtrade status due to the work of People & Planet school and college student groups. We have supported students nationwide to lead in a massive drop in the carbon footprint of the education sector.

We encourage students to think critically, to explore the world around themselves and to be the change they want to see.
